Virginia Museum of History & Culture Partnering with Virginia Pride to Celebrate LGBTQ+ Pride Week
Jumper Maybach work to be included in 'Story of Virginia' Exhibition

Richmond, VA — The Virginia Museum of History & Culture (VMHC) and Virginia Pride are partnering to mark LGBTQ+ Pride Week in Richmond by featuring a special work of art by artist Jumper Maybach in the Story of Virginia exhibition. The work, which Virginia Pride commissioned and donated to the museum in 2018, depicts the Virginia State Capitol and represents an important addition to the museum's growing LGBTQ+ collections.

"As the state's history museum, we are firmly dedicated to representing all who are a part of the Virginia experience," said VMHC President Jamie Bosket, "as such we are deeply committed to better reflecting the diversity of the state, including preserving and sharing the stories of LGBTQ+ communities in the Commonwealth."

The VMHC's new display will also feature documents and artifacts from the VMHC collections including a program from the fifth annual Richmond Lesbian and Gay Pride Day held in 1989 which was the 20th anniversary of the Stonewall riots in New York, and a joint custody consent order granted to same-sex couple Mary Townley and Carol Schall upon the birth of Mary's daughter in 1998. The couple became plaintiffs in the case of Bostic v. Rainey, which overturned Virginia's ban on same-sex marriage in 2014.

The museum is collaborating with LGBTQ+ communities to document these important stories by collecting oral histories, images, documents, and artifacts. If you have a story or item to share, please contact Adam Scher, Vice President of Collections, at 804.342.9670 or ascher@virginiahistory.org.
